

A story shared by a former intern, who is currently working at the Human Resources Section. After her internship, Bruna was hired as a Human Resources Assistant on a short-term appointment.

My name is Bruna Hoffreumon, I come from São Paulo, Brazil. I studied law in Mackenzie University in São Paulo and after the end of my studies I worked as a business lawyer for two years. In 2016 I decided to make a career shift and came to Belgium to study International Relations. As part of my studies I had to conclude an internship. In 2017 I applied to the International Criminal Court internship programme; it was always a dream to work for the Court. I was overwhelmed when I received the email confirming my acceptance to the programme and in September 2017 I started a six months' internship at the Human Resources Section of the ICC. It was a life-changing experience; I learned very much and discovered a strong interest by the work of the Section. Currently, I am working as a recruitment assistant at the ICC. This was only possible due to the great knowledge I acquired during my internship at the Court. I would encourage people to apply to the programme. It is a great learning experience.
